Question 21

Description: Four people were interviewed by the local sports center about doing exercise. Read the texts and complete the questions below. Person A: As we get older, it's easier to forget things. This is especially true when it comes to working out, particularly when it gets difficult. By this, I don't mean preparing for things like long-distance events, but rather the routines and workouts we do regularly. To truly gain from these, they need to be done frequently, and ideally at the same time each day. In this way, it becomes an enjoyable and healthy routine. Person B: Having someone by our side can help us when we just don't feel motivated to exercise. Quite often in this situation, we don't need expert assistance at the local gym. We just need a little extra encouragement from someone who knows us and understands how to motivate us. Afterwards, we can discuss our aching muscles, and it's a great opportunity to enjoy a nutritious meal together. This also plays a role in restoring energy to our bodies. Person C: The whole motivation behind doing sport is the benefit for the body. Some people with unhealthy diets want to lose weight, so they constantly push themselves to the extreme. Perspectives on fitness, including frequency and intensity, have evolved. However, it's better to pay attention to what your body is telling you and take a break if needed. If you're uncertain, consult a trainer at the local fitness center. Person D: The body and the relationship we have with it changes with time. When we're older, it's different from how it was in our younger years. However, this doesn't mean that people should stop being active. Of course, the exercise needs to be gentler and less physically demanding than what we did in school. Older adults simply don't need to compete or burn off the extra energy that young people often have.

Description: Read the passage quickly. Choose a heading for each numbered paragraph (1-7) from the drop-down box. There is one more heading than you need.
The Doggett's Coat and Badge

1._ Thomas Doggett, an Irish actor and comedian who managed Drury Lane Theatre, created the race. He relied heavily on Thames watermen, who were vital for transportation at the time. With poor roads and crowded city streets, the Thames served as the primary highway. Doggett frequently commuted via the river between his London work locations and his home in Chelsea.

4. Earning is reputation
5. Origins of what the winner receives
6. Generations of champions
7. Not in it for the money
8. Why do people join Doggett's Coat

2._ A popular story suggests that Doggett was saved by a waterman after falling into the Thames in 1715. To show his gratitude, he organized a race for six young watermen, offering a prize for the fastest rower on a 7.4-km course between two pubs named "The Swan" in London Bridge and Chelsea.

3. A need for change
4. Earning is reputation

5. Why do people join Doggett's Coat
6. Origins of what the winner receives
7. Not in it for the money
8. Generations of champions

3._ Unlike typical prizes, Doggett awarded a traditional red waterman's coat with a silver badge inscribed with "Liberty." This badge commemorated the coronation of George I of the House of Hanover on August 1, 1714. Doggett chose August 1 for the annual race to honor this event. The badge today still includes "Liberty" and an image of the Hanover horse. Doggett managed the race and financed it himself until his death in 1721.

4._ After Doggett's death, the Fishmongers' Company of London continued the race as specified in his will. However, the event now runs with the incoming tide, and competitors use racing boats instead of commercial vessels. In 1988, due to a decline in watermen, the Fishmongers' Company allowed competitors three chances to win the race.

Additionally, all competitors who finish the race receive a miniature version of Doggett's badge for their collars at a ceremony held at Watermen's Hall. The winner receives a silver badge, while other participants receive bronze ones. Historically, winning the Doggett's Coat and Badge in the 18th and 19th centuries helped bring in more business for the successful waterman. Although this practical advantage is now somewhat outdated, achieving the Doggett's Coat and Badge remains a highly respected honor.

3. A need for change
4. Earning is reputation
5. Why do people join Doggett's Coat
6. Origins of what the winner receives
7. Generations of champions
8. Not in it for the money

6._ In 2012, six rowers competed, and the race was won by 23-year-old waterman Merlin Dwan. Dwan comes from a family of watermen; his father won the Doggett's Coat and Badge in 1977, and his uncle and two cousins have also won the race. However, the Dwan family doesn't hold the record for the most wins—that title goes to the Phelps family, with ten victories.

2. The easiest way to travel
3. A need for change
4. Earning is reputation
5. Why do people join Doggett's Coat
6. Origins of what the winner receives
7. Generations of champions
8. Not in it for the money

7._ The tradition of families winning the Doggett's Coat and Badge highlights its enduring significance. Nowadays, being a waterman is likely viewed less as a career and more as a means of preserving a centuries-old family tradition. This heritage is upheld further by the exclusive group of watermen known as the Royal Watermen. Queen Elizabeth employs 24 watermen to accompany her on ceremonial occasions along the Thames. Each waterman earns a modest annual sum of £3.50 for this role, but the prestige of wearing the iconic red jacket and silver badge on important state occasions is invaluable.

Question 23 (File nghe 672)

Description: In this part, I'm going to ask you to describe a picture. Then I will ask you two questions about it. You will have 45 seconds for each response. Begin speaking when you hear this sound.

Describe the picture

File nghe: 3678

Suggest: I can observe that this picture is a family car trip. In the front of the picture, the father, who is wearing a blue shirt, is driving and the mother is talking with her daughter, who is sitting behind them. In the background, I cannot see anything because it is too blurry. It is clear that they all are smiling and look very happy. I guess they are on their vacation and on their way to their destination. I really love this picture because I can feel the happiness and excitement from this family.

What was the last time you were in a car

File nghe: 3681

Suggest: The last time I was in a car was last Sunday. I went to Cam Ranh to visit our relatives and my father drove me and my mother there. We spent two hours in the car and listening to music was the only way to help us feel less bored. However, I was admiring the views through the window, which is my favorite activity and we didn't talk much during the trip. The trip was normal to me and kind of boring, I must say.

How can people pass time on a long travel?

File nghe: 3684

Suggest: From my experience, we can listen to music to ease the boredom. The melody will make us feel awake and maybe light up our mood. Another activity is sleeping. Sleeping during the trip will help us feel less tired and it's an effective way to pass a long trip. However, we can choose to talk or make a conversation with someone to kill time. As for me, I would choose to admire the view while listening to my music. These are my suggestions about how to pass time on a long trip.

Question 23 (File nghe 673)

Description: In this part, I'm going to ask you to compare two pictures, and I will then ask you two questions about them. You will have 45 seconds for each response. Begin speaking when you hear this sound.

Describe the 2 pictures.

File nghe: 3687

Suggest: From both pictures, I can observe they are outdoor activities and quite adventurous. The first picture shows me a lot of people riding on a small yellow boat, who I assume are a team. While the second one shows a man cycling on his bike. In terms of the differences, I can see the first picture is a teamwork sport, and the second is an individual sport. As for me, I would choose the first picture because I like teamwork sports and spending time with my friends.

What are the difficulties of both sports?

File nghe: 3689

Suggest: Well from my point of view, both sports are very difficult and I think here are some main ones. First they are both adventurous sports so you need to be brave so play those sports. Second, they are not for weak people, you may easily have a heart attack or blood pressure. Finally, it is financial. You will need a lot of money to buy necessary requirements and have to check your health regularly. For me, I would rather not play those sports because I don't have the guts to play them.

Why some people prefer team sports than individual sports?

File nghe: 3692

Suggest: In my opinion, some people prefer team sports because they like hanging out with friends. Thanks to team sports, they will strengthen their friendship and help them understand each other more. Another reason is because they want to experience and meet more people in the world. With this, a new friendship will be formed and will last long because of the same interest. As for me, I would prefer team sports too because they are fun when playing with my friends.

Question 23 (File nghe 674)

Describe a time you were very busy How do you feel when you are busy? If people work less, will their lives become better?

File nghe: 3696

Suggest: Now, I am going to answer the three questions that you gave me. Describe a time you were very busy How do you feel when you are busy? If people work less, will their lives become better? Regarding the first question, let me tell you about a time I was busy and it was when I traveled to Danang City. Da Nang is famous for its beaches, and for example one of them is My Khe, which is one of the most wonderful beaches in the world, so every year, there are many tourists going to the area to see the beauty of the beach. Therefore, going to this city was extremely expensive for me at that time. So in Danang I did a number of things, first of all, I did some sightseeing in the mountains and I had a beautiful view of the city below. During the trip, I was busy traveling to a lot of tourist destinations from early in the morning till late in the afternoon Turning to the second question, I feel happy when I am busy because it makes me feel more active. As for the final question, if people work less, their lives will become better. First, they can spend more time with their loved ones. Second, they can relax after a long day at work.
